

Profile of the Winners

MATTEO ALESSANDRO BOBBA (matteo.bobba@upf.edu) graduated in Economics at Bocconi University in Milano on March 2004 with a final grade 108/110. From September to December 2001 he has participated to the exchange program at University of Glasgow (UK). Currently, he is involved in the Master in Economics at Universitat Pompeu Fabra in Barcelona. His research interests encompass the field of development economics and, in particular, topics of international trade and macroeconomic policies related to developing countries. In the spirit of this interest, he is currently evaluating some job positions as a researcher in International Economic and Financial Institutions.

PAMELA GIUSTINELLI (p-giustinelli@northwestern.edu) graduated in Economics at Verona University in September 2003 with final grade 110 cum laude, awarded as “2003 Best Graduated Student”. She took the Master in Economics (MEc) at L. Bocconi University in June 2004, with grade 110/110. Pamela is currently enrolled as first-year student in the Ph.D. program in Economics at Northwestern University (with financial support from MCC, fellowship Marco Fanno). Her scientific and research interest concern mainly Microeconomics and (applied) econometrics, with special focus, within the field of Labor Economics, on Investment in Human Capital and Return to Education, both in their theoretical and empirical aspects.

ANDREA MARCELLO BUFFA (andrea.buffa@mac.com) took his degree in Economics at the University of Turin in March 2004 with final grade of 110 cum laude and honors of publication of the thesis. In August 2004 he received a summer school degree in Advanced Microeconomics from the London School of Economics and Political Science. Currently he is enrolled in the Master in Economics at CORIPE Piemonte (University of Turin) and he is one of the winners of the “Marco Fanno” Fellowship by MCC Capitalia Gruppo Bancario for the academic year 2005-2006. His research interests deal mainly with the economics of information, contract theory, game theory and microstructure of financial markets. Next year he will carry out his studies attending the Ph.D. in Economics at Northwestern University.

LUCA BRANDI (brando2000@libero.it) graduated with final grade 110 cum laude in Banking, Finance and Insurance Economics in November 2003 at the University of Macerata. In December 2003 he won a research grant in the financial sector at the Faculty of Economics of the “Università Politecnica delle Marche”. At present, he collaborates with the University of Ancona within the Miur project “Problems of Territorial Integration of The Italian Banking System”. Besides, he works as financial consultant in the agricultural sector.

MATTEO LUCIANI (matteoluciani@yahoo.it) graduated in Economics from the University “Roma Tre” with final grade 110 cum laude. He is currently enrolled in the M.A. Program in Economics at the University of Southern California. His main interest is time series analysis.