

Profile of the 2008 Winners

GAIA BARONE (gaiabarone@gmail.com) received her M.S. in Economics and Finance summa cum laude in 2007 and special mention from LUISS “Guido Carli” University of Rome. She was awarded three thesis prizes: the «Marco Fanno» Prize in 2006, the «Assiom» Prize in 2006 and the «Oddone Fantini» Prize in 2008 and a scholarship for graduate studies abroad in 2008 by LUISS “Guido Carli” University. Currently, Gaia is a Ph.D. student in Money and Finance at “Tor Vergata” University of Rome.

BRUNO CAPRETTINI (bruno.caprettini@gmail.com) graduated summa cum laude in April 2008 in the M.Sc. in Political Economics at “La Sapienza” University of Rome. Since July 2007 he is working with the Fiscal Policy Department at CER (Centro Europa Ricerche) in Rome, where he has taken part in the completion of studies published by several Italian institutions (Sogei, Confcommercio, Italian Parliament). Since September 2008 he is attending the Ph.D. Programme in Economics at “La Sapienza” University of Rome. His scientific interests are primarily aimed at technological change, quantitative methods applied to economics and fiscal policy.

MATTEO FORMENTI (formenti.matteo@fastwebnet.it) graduated in International economics summa cum laude in 2007 at “Tor Vergata” University of Rome, where he is currently enrolled in the Money and Finance Ph.D. His interests deal with the role of information in a general dynamic asset pricing model when investors partly know the entire information and therefore need to forecast the forecast of others, following an imperfect competitive Bayes-Nash equilibrium perspective. He will complete his Ph.D. thesis during an exchange as a visiting student at the HEC, University of Paris.

GIULIA LA MATTINA (giulia.lamattina@gmail.com) graduated summa cum laude in March 2007 in Economic and Social Sciences at “Luigi Bocconi” University of Milan. She is enrolled in the Ph.D. in economics at Boston University. Her fields of research are development and labor economics. She has recently studied the economic consequences of civil conflicts in developing countries and the economic impact of immigration.

LUCIA RIZZICA (luciarizzica@tiscali.it) graduated summa cum laude in 2007 in Economic and Social Sciences at “Luigi Bocconi” University of Milan with the thesis «Doctors on the move: an empirical study on African Medical Brain Drain» which was awarded the Dissertation Prizes «Faus-to Vicarelli» of the Einaudi Institute of Economics and Finance. In 2008 she worked at “Luigi Bocconi” University of Milan as teaching assistant in the courses of Microeconomics and Development Economics and as research assistant on the project «Racial Bias in Capital Sentencing» coordinated by professors A. Alesina and E. La Ferrara. Having been granted a Scholarship by the Centro Studi Luca d’Agliano, in October 2008 she started a Ph.D. in Economics at the University College of London under the supervision of Prof. Imran Rasul.